
Phyllis Schlafly and New Politics of Family

Posted by concernedDad - 2007/10/25 00:13

While this article by Stephen Baskerville entitled "Phyllis Schlafly and New Politics of Family" was posted back in January of 2006, it's just come to my attention and I'd like to raise other people's awareness of it now. In it he writes: Mrs. Schlafly has challenged a massive abuse of the Constitution that most on the right ignore: the forced, systematic destruction of families and of parents' rights in the nation's family courts. This involves much more than "gender bias" against fathers in custody disputes. It represents the logical culmination of what many see as the "totalitarian" tendencies of organized feminism but which few fully understand or confront. "No evidence exists that nearly half of American children were voluntarily abandoned by their own fathers," she writes. "Feminist organizations and writers have propagated the myth that women are victims of an oppressive patriarchal society and that marriage is an inherently abusive institution?. Feminists made divorce a major component of women's liberation." See the complete article at: <http://www.humanevents.com/article.php?id=11658>

=====

Re:Phyllis Schlafly and New Politics of Family

Posted by concernedDad - 2007/11/19 21:55

A great deal of information can also be found at the Utah Fathers' Rights Meetup Group.

=====